No more guessing test results and manual tracking

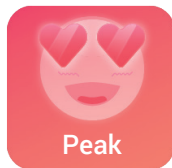

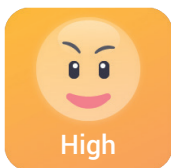

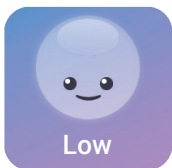

Have you ever struggled with interpreting the color changes of your ovulation test strips?

Figuring out test results can be challenging for human eyes and involves lots of guesswork and frustration.

Eveline is here to help! Our test kit utilizes your smartphone's front camera to analyze the ovulation test strips with superior precision. It also detects your LH surge with 99% accuracy and lets you know exactly at what fertility level you are currently at: Low, High or Peak.

After testing, you don't need to keep your test strips or write the results down by hand. Eveline tracks them automatically on your phone.

Focus on love, not stressful planning

Trying to conceive can be a stressful experience if you constantly have to worry about testing, tracking results and following the right timing.

Leave the planning to Eveline! Our app's AI learns about your unique cycle and automatically reminds you to test only when your next fertile window is approaching. Instead of daily testing, you only need to do it 5-7 times a month.

As a result, you can relax your mind and enjoy getting intimate with your loved one.

Understanding Fertility

Having intercourse around the day of ovulation gives you the best chance to conceive!

Ovulation is when a mature egg is released from the follicle to the nearest fallopian tube and then to the uterus during menstruation. A healthy woman's body produces large amounts of Luteinizing Hormone (LH) prior to ovulation. LH can be detected in the urine through ovulation tests.

By having sex on the day of the LH surge and 12-36 hours before/after, your chance of conception can be greatly increased. Eveline helps track your cycle effortlessly and find the best timing for baby-making!
